

An AIDS-Free Society

INT. OFFICE ROOM - DAY

The room is scattered with notes and office paraphernalia. Not something uncommon. A middle-aged woman, KATHERINE LYNN WISENDORFF, sits behind a desk and looks straight at the us. She looks very professional but instills an aura of creepiness.

KATHERINE LYNN WISENDORFF
(infomercial voice)
Hello, everyone. My name is Katherine Lynn Wisendorff.

Her title appears below her.

KATHERINE LYNN WISENDORFF (CONT'D)
And I would like to tell you about a new organization to prevent the spread of AIDS. It has been estimated that by the year 2010, 50
to 70 million people will be infected with HIV.

INSERT: An image of a graph depicting the statistic.

KATHERINE LYNN WISENDORFF (CONT'D)
It is in us, under these circumstances, to initiate a plan to prevent the spread of this disease. How many more loved ones must suffer? Why wait on a cure that may never come? This can be prevented if, and only if, we seclude those infected. The process will include locating all of the HIV positive individuals...

INSERT: Image of police beating people on the streets, dragging them semi-unconscious to the sides of walls. A terrifying image of violence.

KATHERINE LYNN WISENDORFF (CONT'D)
...ship them off to a remote island...

INSERT: Several images of the resplendent island.

KATHERINE LYNN WISENDORFF (CONT'D)
...where they could live the last of their days and not spread the disease further. The rest would be history.

She beams happily and pleased.

INT. NEW ROOM - DAY

Katherine Lynn Wisendorff enters the frame and stands next to a poster that reads "GOALS" with an image of the island as a watermark.

KATHERINE LYNN WISENDORFF (CONT'D)
During the course of the quarantine on the island, deep security walls are to be installed. Construction has already begun.

INSERT: Image of the construction on the island with gargantuan walls rising towards the sky.

KATHERINE LYNN WISENDORFF (V.O.)
However, since we are not an inhumane society, they will have the same resources we do now.

INSERT: Image of the quirky society living on the island. People enjoy the pleasant commodities. An incredulous scene.

KATHERINE LYNN WISENDORFF (V.O.)
The beautiful scenery of the island will ultimately become their residence until their demise. Who could ask for more?

BACK TO SCENE

KATHERINE LYNN WISENDORFF (CONT'D)
This would only be for the best, and will be appreciated in the long run when our children...

INSERT: Image of CHILDREN playing.

KATHERINE LYNN WISENDORFF (V.O.)
...will be able to reap the benefits of this glorious undertaking.

INT. ROOM - DAY

Katherine Lynn Wisendorff sits down on a couch, her voice tinged with aggression and hostility.

KATHERINE LYNN WISENDORFF (CONT'D)
This plan comes into effect for the reason that forgiveness, in our modern world, is but a forgotten thing and the acceptance of the unexpected is synonymous with archaicism. As we continue to live in a frightened world, this seems like the most plausible thing to do.

An unearthly smile leaves her once more.

KATHERINE LYNN WISENDORFF (CONT'D)
We plead with you now to help fund this program. In a world that is ever so shifting, we hope that it can be in the sophistication of our race - humankind - that will prevail by whichever means possible.

INT. WHITE ROOM - DAY

Katherine Lynn Wisendorff looks right at us - an uncomfortable angle.

KATHERINE LYNN WISENDORFF (CONT'D)
I hope you find it in your heart to understand.

She smiles once more, but this smile is the kind of smile that will haunt you for the rest of your life.
